

BIOGRAPHY

Veronica R. Tabares is a writer by day and by night. From novels and screenplays to picture books, she is known for her witty style that effortlessly elicits laughs but never blushes. Growing up in Memphis, Tennessee, she realized she wanted to become a storyteller the moment she read her first few words.

Throughout her creative journey, Veronica has earned extensive acclaim for her work. Her book, "Gray Zone" won Bronze in the Feathered Quill Book Awards' Juvenile/YA category and a number of her screenplays were finalists in various prominent contests. To date, she has a grand total of nine books in print (and counting), including two sci-fi novels, three fantasy novels, one YA contemporary novel, and three picture books. Most recently, she has been avidly working on "Time Without," a riveting standalone sequel to "Department of Temporal Adjustment."

Veronica holds a Master of Fine Arts degree in Creative Writing from Full Sail University and a Master of Library and Information Science degree from the University of Washington. She also received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Anthropology.

While she's a southern girl at heart, Veronica R. Tabares currently writes and resides with her wonderful family in Seattle, Washington. When she isn't crafting fantastical stories, she spends the bulk of her time thinking about the cosmos, time travel, archaeology, and everything in between.
